Legend

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are aged 65 and over has increased by 1.5 million, and the number of people aged 75 and over has increased by 1.2 million (Office of National Statistics 1999). The number of people aged 85 and over has increased by 0.5 million.

There is a growing awareness of the need to develop services to meet the needs of the ageing population. The Department of Health (1999) has published a strategy for ageing, which sets out the government's commitment to improve the lives of older people. The strategy is based on the following principles: older people should be able to live independently, safely and comfortably; older people should be able to participate in the community; and older people should be able to access the services they need.

Portage High School

Math > It is the basis of everything

With test, scrap paper, calculator, and pencil at the ready, the student ponders how he is going to use this math later in his life. The answer is simple; Math is used in almost every profession that one can think of.

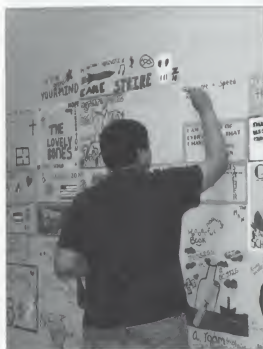

One of the usual suspects, Mr. Marston Mundi, poses up against the wall for his 'mug shot.' 'Math Mundi'; as some students call him is known for being a teacher that makes learning math interesting and fun.

As the students look over their assignment, math teacher Mr. John Iles starts writing a function on the chalkboard.

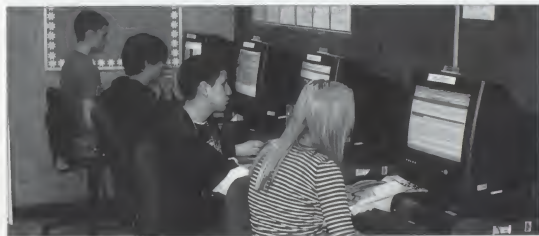

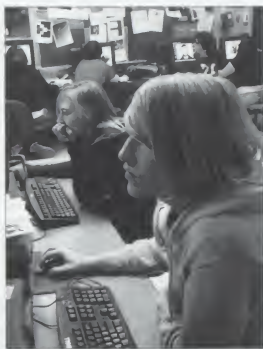

As many students already know, a function is given by an arithmetic expression describing how one number depends on another.

Finding his space, this taller student decorates a brick near the top of the wall of books. The books "advertised" by the students run the gamut of styles, reading levels, and genres.

Staring intently at the computer screens Junior Danielle Prusynski and Robert "Bobby" Markos work on the latest issue of the student newspaper. Pow Wow and Legend fall under the realm of English classes.

Time in the computer labs is extremely precious for these English students. The +1 in 6+1 writing is presentation, so students work very hard on making their English assignments pleasing to the eye.

English and reading teacher Mrs. Roberta Jocius smiles for the camera. Not only is she a favorite of students, but she also was the sponsor of the Chess Club at PHS.

Quick, stop those students from putting graffiti all over the walls! English teacher Mrs. Michelle Vuko's classes were allowed to decorate a brick in the wall outside of her classroom to promote a book that the students read and enjoyed. This type of "advertising" will promote reading for future generations of freshmen at PHS.

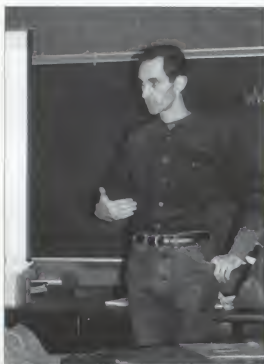

Not limiting itself to pen and paper, today's English classes give students a chance to expand their horizons by implementing technology to convey their message. Here an English student gives a "book talk" to his fellow classmates.

English > Communicating through life

Science > The quest for understanding

Science teacher Mr. Robert Kania supervises a group of his students as they are about to launch a projectile to test a theory in a physics lab. The three person launcher is not only educational, but fun too.

Local physician Dr. Mann Spittler talks to science classes about the dangers of drug use. Spittler's own daughter died from a lethal dose of heroin and since that time, he volunteers his time to speak to local students.

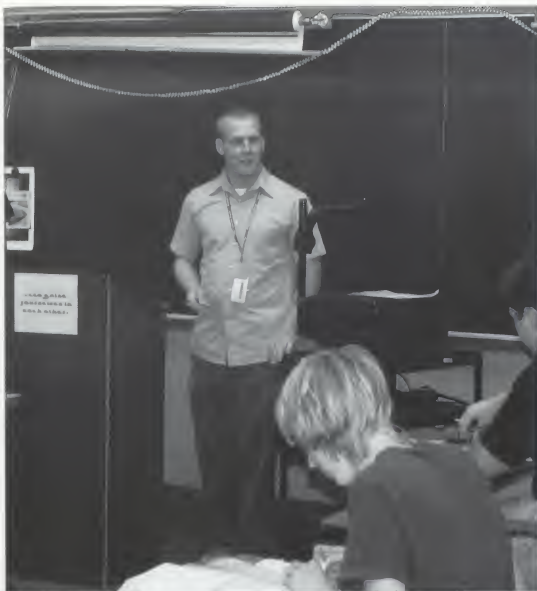

Chemistry teacher Mrs. Carrie Brown effectively uses the overhead projector to explain how to balance a chemical equation. Balancing equations in chemistry is called stoichiometry.

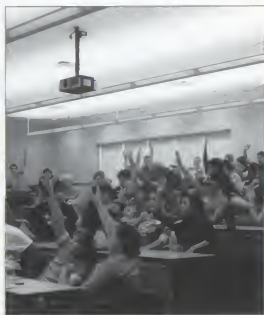

The physics classes enjoyed a group of guest speakers called "Physics in Action" on a late spring day. Much to the delight of the students, the group managed to launch a few projectiles with the cannon that they brought with them.

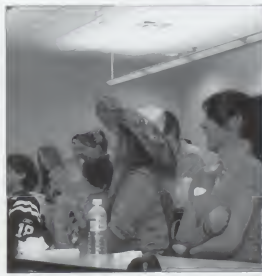

With a smile on his face, social studies teacher Mr. Thomas Kenning teaches his American History class. Kenning is known for teaching his social studies classes with an element of social activism to enlighten the students.

Using the Large Group Instruction Room, the Student Council holds their annual Student Leadership Conference. Student Council, in a lot of ways, is the living embodiment of what students learn in their Social Studies classes.

During the Student Council Leadership Conference, the guest speaker motivates and captivates the future leaders of the student body. The conference teaches essential skills to help the student leaders succeed.

Laughter and excitement explode from the students during the Leadership Conference. Wearing a sombrero, junior Natalie Johnson applauds for the guest speaker. Johnson is involved in a variety of school activities.

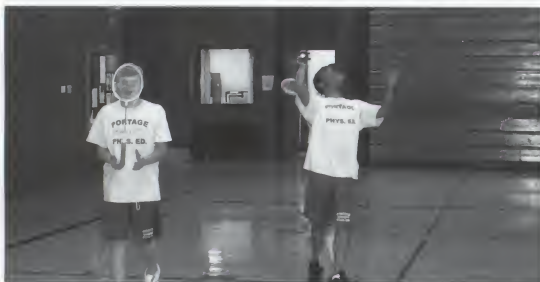

Social Studies teacher Ms. Candace Crockett spent her first year of teaching working with the high schools students of her own alma mater. It was in these same rooms where she was inspired to be a teacher.

Social Studies > The way to change the future, is to learn about the past

Physical Education > Learning to be a healthier you

Swimming is not only a fun class that the Physical Education department offers, it can also lead to the potential of a student job. Students learn how to be a life guard and CPR skills.

The freshmen gym class warms up for a little badminton and some friendly competition. Badminton might seem a little silly, but it is actually an Olympic sport.

Successfully completing a "bump" in the game of volleyball, these students enjoy the game in the new Field House. The Field House is a much needed addition for the high school and includes a state-of-the-art weight room and practice facility for the students and the community to use.

Art > 'You gotta have Art!'

Some say that imitation is the highest form of flattery. Art teacher Mrs. Paula Weise's class is doing just that by recreating famous works of art in front of the school using sidewalk chalk.

Using the pottery wheel, this student throws some clay to create his next artistic masterpiece. While using a pottery wheel looks like fun, it takes a large amount of skill and preparation to be successful.

Music Ed. > Creating and playing the soundtrack of our

The Symphonic Band practices in the new music "wing" of the school under the tutelage of Mr. William Timmerman.

The Choraliers have smiles on their faces as they perform at the "Feel the Funk" inspired choir festival in the Spring.

There is more to the music department than just playing music. Classes in music technology help students explore new avenues in the music profession other than performance based careers.

Reading her sheet music, this violin player practices for an upcoming performance. Instruments in the violin family, which include the cello and the viola, are quite popular with some high school musicians.

Career and Tech Ed.

Science teacher Mrs. Tammy Kepshire keeps a watchful eye over her students during a dissection lab. While the experience of working on a dissection is invaluable for the future medical professionals, safety is the key concern for the students in the class.

Giving back to the community and gaining real-life work experience is what career and technical education is about. The Dental Health students head over to the various elementary schools to teach young children how to properly take care of their teeth.

The PHS branch of the Regional Federal Credit Union not only gives all students a place to save their money, it also provides students an opportunity to work in a professional, financial setting.

Printing Technology teacher Mr. Mark Fischer takes a break from explaining the intricacies of printing to flash a smile to the camera. Fischer and his students are responsible for printing almost everything with the Portage Township Schools.

With textbook open as a reference, a Medical Health Professions student ponders the first steps that she will take in the dissection lab. Aprons, latex gloves, and mask are used to protect the students.

Foreign Language > Keys to the World

Spanish teachers Mr. Jose and Mrs. Carolyn Rodea play a little acoustic guitar "Latin-style" during a Cinco de Mayo celebration in the commons. The pair plays music professionally as well.

Spanish teacher Mr. Henry Pimental helps teach a few dance moves to a student and Mr. Rodea. The Cinco de Mayo celebration brought a little Mexican culture.

Spanish teacher Mr. Jose Rodea's second language is actually English. Being born in Mexico, Spanish is his native tongue.

Spanish teacher Mrs. Becky Fry is having fun with one her of students. Fry is known to be an excellent teacher who makes her class interesting and fun.

FACS > Family and Consumer Sciences

Some of the students decorate holiday cookies in their Foods class. Family and Consumer Sciences classes are much more than just cookie and they include fashion design and early childhood development classes as well.

Cheerleading has come a long way from the traditional idea of the high school cheerleader. Not only are the girls required to be more athletic, it has virtually become a sport onto itself with the amount of skill required.

Cheerleaders bring spirit to games and parade.

The cheerleading squad is one of the "featured acts" at this year's homecoming pep rally. The girls planned out and performed a special routine for that evening.

The Poms squad performs at various athletic events like home football and basketball games, as well as pep rallies. They are also quite an accomplished competitive squad who have traveled all over the country.

The Poms squad compete in two different categories: spirit and hip hop. Hip Hop is very similar in style, but it introduces more modern dance moves into the routines.

The orchestra festival is an opportunity for the students to break the mold of wearing their traditional orchestra uniforms by letting them dress up how they like. Many of the girls wear their prom dresses to the show.

Arms raised, Orchestra teacher Mrs. Carrie Carlson charismatically directs the orchestra in their final performance of the school year.

ORCHESTRA FEST HIGHLIGHTS CLASSICAL GENRES

The graduating seniors assemble after their last high school performance for a group photo. While many students participated in orchestra for fun, others will try to pursue a career in music.

Senior Asa Reid shows his appreciation for the four great years of orchestra by giving Orchestra teacher Mrs. Carrie Carlson a hug at the award ceremony.

With awards in hand, the senior orchestra members are ready to take their musical experiences out into the real world.

Marching Band director Mr. William Timmerman walks down the street with the marching band as they perform for the homecoming parade.

When people think of a marching band, they think loud sounds that are pleasing to the ears. But there is a strong visual aspect to their performance as well with their synchronized moves and flag corps displays.

The Pride of Portage Marching Indians take it to a new level of excellence.

Performing at the homecoming game, the marching band and the flag corps get into their proper positions before the performance starts.

The drumline marches down Central avenue during the homecoming parade. The drumline has one of the most important jobs in the marching band as it keeps the tempo and pace for everyone.

The trumpet is probably one of the most recognizable instruments in a marching band. Their ability to play loud and clear helps create that "marching band" sound.

The Choraliers and Choirs use the human voice to bring music to all .

Hands in the air symbolizes the big finale, all of the students the choirs and Choraliers sing during the "Feel the Funk" choir festival at the end of the school year.

Sitting around and enjoying each others company before the performance starts, the girls of the choirs blow off some nervous tension.

Dancing and other assorted choreographed movements add to the fun and excitement of both the performers and the audience .

The Choraliers are the premier show choir group of the school. They perform at the annual Secret Santa gathering as well as school and community performances.

Here, part of the brass section belts out an early jazz classic. Brass instruments take vibration produced from the lips and turn it into melodic sound.

The trumpet is just one of many instruments in the brass family. Musical notes are made by use of the three keys on the instrument in different combinations.

Looking over his sheet music, this student pianist plays as the audience is entering the gymnasium for the performance.

Concert band teacher Mr. Michael DePasquale takes the time to pose with one of his students. Mr D, as the students call him, is known to be a fun, but demanding teacher.

Imagining a 6 foot rabbit named Harvey

by Elise Mullen

For the last 12 years Patrick Moody has been the director of our school's fall plays, bringing students entertainment and displaying some of the great talent that we have among our midst.

This year our fall play, held on November 17th and 18th, is called Harvey. Harvey will directly follow the famous play written by Mary Chase.

"Harvey and last year's Inherit the Wind are especially difficult presentations, especially from an actor's perspective, in that the characters are complex and have many pages of lines to memorize," says Mr. Moody.

Harvey is a comedy about a man, named Elwood P. Dowd, who has an imaginary friend who happens to resemble a 6-foot tall 3 in a half-inch rabbit. The imaginary friend's name is Harvey. Veta Louise, (Mr. Dowd's sister), wants her daughter to have suitors, but when her brother introduces Harvey to them, they are out the door before the chance arises. Veta Louise is driven crazy by Elwood's live in hallucination. When Veta Louise tries to put Elwood in a mental hospital, she finds herself committed instead, and it's up to Elwood to straighten out the mess with the help of his imaginary friend.

This year's task of finding a cast was a little more difficult than most years, since about 150 students showed up to audition and there was only opportunity for 12 parts. "No fun for me," says Mr. Moody, after having to decide between all of his auditions, who were best suited for the roles. Mr. Moody looks for an ability to read well when auditioning, stage presence, and whether or not the person fits the character in look and voice when he chooses his actors for the productions.

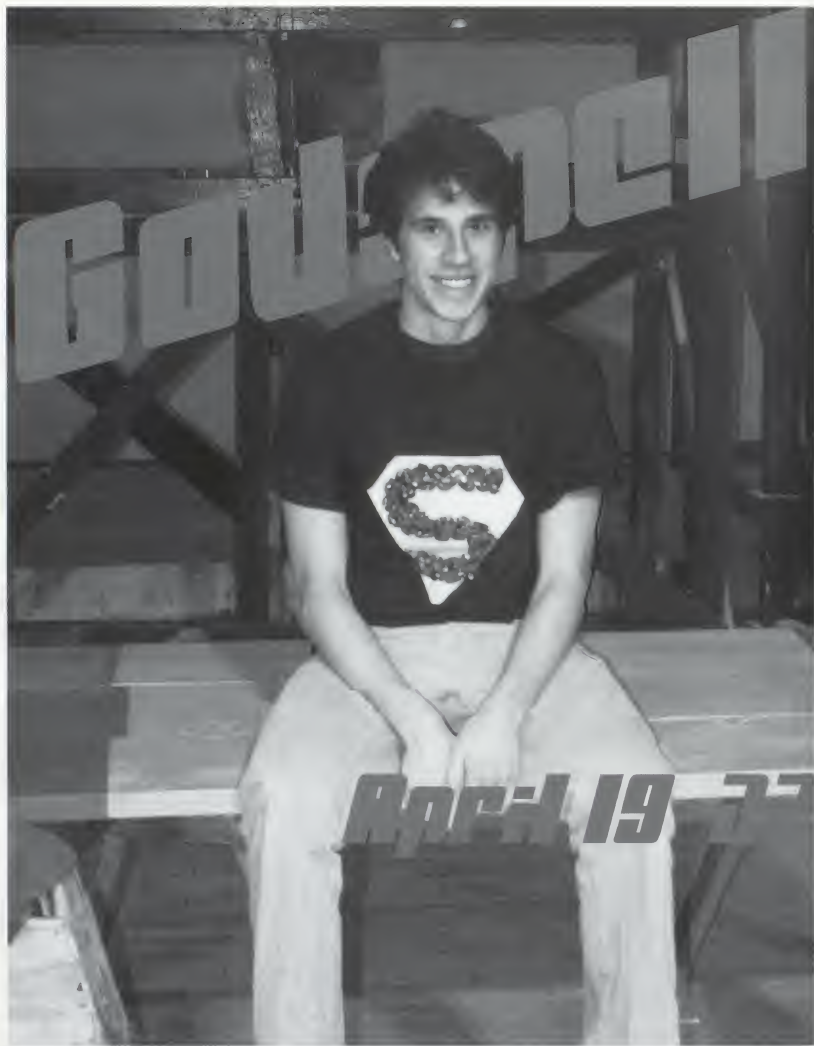

"Elwood P. Dowd is one of the more difficult characters to perform in the plays we have done over the years," says Mr. Moody. Mr. Moody has chosen Senior Sean Toomey to play Mr. Dowd.

The ceremonial throwing of the graduation caps makes its glorious return. It was something that has been missing at previous graduation ceremonies.

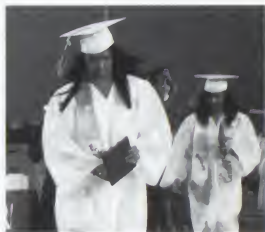

Twelve years in the making finally comes down to this one moment. The moment when your name is called and you are handed a diploma from one of the principals. You have now entered the "real world".

Class of 2007 Graduation: "It is finally here!"

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are aged 65 and over has increased by 1.5 million, and the number of people aged 75 and over has increased by 1.1 million (Office of National Statistics 1999). The number of people aged 65 and over is projected to increase to 6.5 million by 2011, and the number of people aged 75 and over to 3.5 million (Office of National Statistics 1999).

There is a growing awareness of the need to develop services to meet the needs of older people, and a number of initiatives have been developed to address this need. The Department of Health (1999) has published a strategy for older people, which sets out the government's commitment to improve the lives of older people, and to ensure that they are able to live independently and actively.

The strategy identifies a number of key areas for action, including: improving the health and social care services available to older people; promoting the independence and active participation of older people; and ensuring that older people are able to live in their own homes and communities. The strategy also identifies a number of key challenges, including: the need to develop services that are able to meet the needs of older people who are living with long-term conditions; the need to develop services that are able to meet the needs of older people who are living in care homes; and the need to develop services that are able to meet the needs of older people who are living in the community.
